What's it got to do with war?	It tells the story of the Battle of Marignano and includes some sound effects of battle	It's about a soldier going off to the Vietnam War	It's about the horrors of the Vietnam War	It's making light of the deprivations of the 2 nd World War	It was recorded by a musician who was also an airman in his country's air force and entertained the troops. His plane was shot down in the 2 nd World and he was never found.	It's the theme music to a 2 nd World War movie
Something about the music	The piece is divided into several sections, each section of the text receives different music.	The chorus has a mixture of monody and homophonic texture with quiet accompaniment.	The first and third parts of this extract of music is neoclassical as it draws on musical styles from earlier times.	The verses have a piano obligato part which sounds as though it could be an improvised part.	The song finishes with a series of rising scales, then a low note and a drum strike.	After the introduction, the piece has a melody with two instruments in harmony and is accompanied by a walking bass line.
A line of lyrics	Phiffres, sifflez, Frappez tambours	The Lord's prayer said and the anthem sang	Eins, zwei drei, vier,	Owing to conditions	No lyrics	No lyrics
